TYKA NELSON

Every year the Student Union brings n ·y different acts to Longwood to entertain the studen ·ody. The Student Union Board has different committee. ·n charge of the different types of entertainment they ha. ·ile. For example, this year's film committee brought a ·opular film to the Lancer Cafe each week. One of the big m.sical acts they brought to Longwood this year was Tyka Nelson. The concert gave Longwood students an opportunity to help with the concert and meet the performer.

ISH

The International Studies House is specially designed to promote a greater understanding among nations and cultures. Through a coordinated effort with the Modern Languages Club, the International Studies Program, and NOTONLYNEWS, they strives to heighten cultural awareness. During their first year, the members of ISH made trips to Washington D.C. and to the Virginia Dept. of Economic Development in Richmond. In order to establish an international flavor on the hall, they completed a flag painting hall project and held several international dinners. They also participated in the Oktoberfest parade and activities.

NOTONLYNEWS

This year Longwood saw the rise of a new and exciting publication, NOTONLYNEWS, the newsmagazine, bringing light to issues of importance to college students both here and beyond Longwood. Covering the Longwood, national, and international scenes we're looking forward to seeing NOTONLYNEWS grow and expand with Longwood during her next 150 years. Congratulations to NOTONLYNEWS president Luigi Agostino for his CHI Commendation!

GREEK LIFE

Becoming a part of a fraternity or sorority can be a lifetime rewarding experience. Members get the chance to participate in different activities ranging from service projects to social activities. Also, the special bonds that are formed between the brothers and sisters of any particular group can be cherished forever.

SENIORS

CLASS OF 1989

The senior class of 1989 is a very special class to Longwood. It is special because it has been nurtured since the members arrived here freshman year to be the class that would graduate during Longwood's sesquicentennial year. As the members of this class embark on their journeys into the nineties, they will carry with them not only diplomas from Longwood, but many memories of their senior year.

For the first time in a number of years, there was a senior ball, which, despite the snowy weather was well attended by a large faction of the class. Another idea that has been put into effect this year is one that will instill pride in the members of the class during Founder's Day in 1994. At that time, a scholarship in the name of the class of 1989 to the school. In addition to these special programs and activities on behalf of this class, during the commencement ceremony in May, many outstanding student leaders will be walking across Wheeler Mall. Good luck class of 1989, and thank you . . .

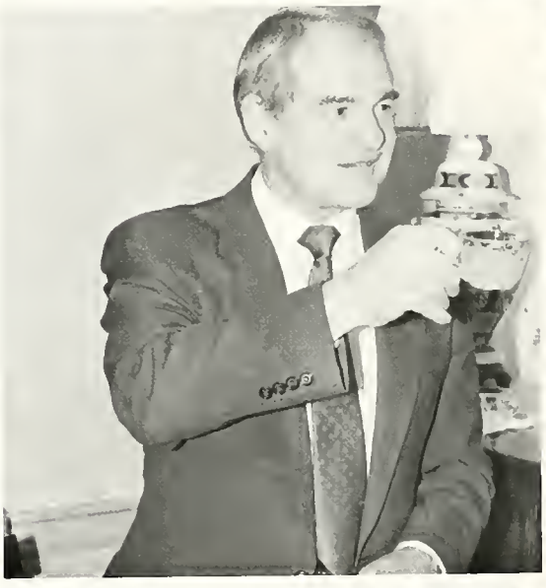
SENIOR

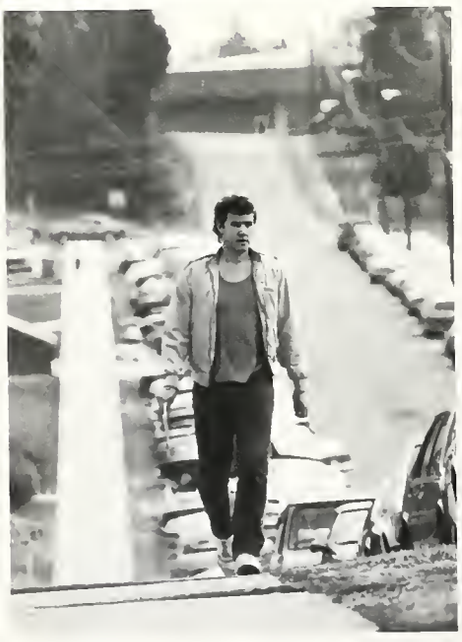
The Time of Our Lives

The Senior Ball was a successful bash put together with the theme "We had the Time of Our Lives", the theme song from the popular movie, Dirty Dancin'. The evening started out with a reception at the president's home, where Dr. Dorrill signed the proposal for the class gift. Due to the snowy weather, there was some fear of cancellation, but the event went off as planned—complete with buses running from campus to Longwood House for safety reasons. After the reception, seniors and their dates moved to the Gold Room, where a ball was had by all.

BALL

HERE'S TO THE CLASS OF '89





LONGWOOD COLLEGE

1839-1989

The Way It All Began

On March 5, 1839, the school we know today as Longwood College began as the Farmville Female Seminary Association. Construction on the building that is now a part of Ruffner began in 1897. When that structure was the primary building on the campus, the subjects available and five month tuition for them were: English ($15.00 for higher, $12.50 for lower); Latin, Greek, French ($5.00 each); and piano ($20.00). Board was $8.00 to $10.00 per month.

On May 24, 1860, the Farmville Female Seminary became the Farmville Female College, with a faculty of five. Even then the school had a small, friendly atmosphere, as the number of student boarders was only thirty. Those boarders all lived in the president's home and were in his care.

During the Civil War, many problems were created by typical wartime situations. Many of the faculty members were called away.

On October 30, 1884, the Farmville Female College became the State Normal School for training teachers. This was the first state institution of higher learning for women. The first student body was about 100 girls averaging seventeen to eighteen years old.

Most changes at the school took place during the presidency of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman who took the helm from Dr. Frazer in 1902. Dr. Jarman served the college for 44 years.

Other changes in the name include:

1914— State Normal School for Women
1924— State Teachers College
1949— Longwood College

TRADITIONS

Longwood College is one which is rich with traditions, many of which either died out or evolved into another tradition. When Longwood was all female, there were many traditions surrounding the classes. Just as it is today, the Green and Whites were representative of odd year's classes, and Red and Whites represented even year's classes. Only then, there were class days, skits, sings, and a traditional daisy chain for the seniors. Beginning in 1925, freshmen wore little beanies and were called "rats" during Rat Week. May Day and its queen are traditions which have disappeared, and the Alpha Kappa Gamma Circus has become what we know as Oktoberfest. Although many of the old traditions have gone, they are remembered well by many proud alumnae.

More Rules

The following is reprinted from the STC handbook regarding the Campus League:

It is the purpose of the Campus League to influence students to be careful of their personal appearance and behavior at all times. In the carrying out of this purpose it becomes necessary to remind girls not to hang over or around the Rotunda, to avoid making unnecessary paths on the campus, and to endeavor to keep the halls and campus free from unsightly trash.

The Campus League is composed of representatives from all classes, and the chairman is elected by the student body . . . .

The League asks the hearty support and cooperation of all students in carrying out the following requirements:

1. Do not cut magazines or deface any material or property in the Library.
2. Do not cut across the campus, but use the walks.
3. Do not recline upon the campus or lounge in the reception hall.
4. Do not hand over or around the Rotunda.
5. Do not break the shrubbery on the campus.
6. Do not throw papers, trash or water out of the windows.
7. Do not hang clothes in or out of the windows.
8. Do not drive nails or tacks into the walls or deface any part of the building with pencil marks or otherwise.
9. Do not leave your room in the morning until it is thoroughly clean.
10. Be neatly dressed at all times.
11. Turn off the lights when they are not in use.
12. Do not run water unnecessarily.
13. Do not slam doors.

Unorganized SPORTS

Lots of sports are popular with students, even if it seems that some of those sports are ones that do not have organized college teams. The Student Union offers a variety of "sports" as options to the traditional collegiate team sports. For example, there are pool and ping-pong tables, as well as several bowling lanes.

In addition to those, there are intramural activities ranging from spades to inner-tube water polo. Some students even just take it upon themselves to think of things for exercise or recreation. There are many places to go for aerobics; and the weight room and pool are always utilized during their open rec hours. Others may just go outside and play frisbee on Lankford Mall, or skateboard around campus. Everywhere you look, especially on warm, sunny days, people are organizing their own sports.

Both the French and Lancer Pools are widely used during open-rec hours.

LINES!

Ever since the beginning of time, people have been waiting in lines, and it is no secret that everybody hates it! Nowadays, there is a line for just about anything you can think of—post office, registrar, bookstore and worst of all, dining hall. In the dining hall, we wait for a tray, we wait for our main course, we wait for our vegetables, we wait for ketchup, and we wait for our drinks. If there's ever not a time that we have to wait in a line, we talk about how strange it is because there are no lines. It seems that our society is obsessed with the concept of line-waiting. There are even people that study the different types of lines for a living. However even with all of the different lines we have to wait in, we never really have to wait for that long. Compared to in the past couple of years, the time we spend in lines has probably been cut in half. Two places where line situations have improved drastically are the bookstores, and the Registrar's office. Now that the bookstore uses several different check-out areas during the book-buying time, a lot less time is spent down there in line. In the Registrar's office, now that it has moved to a new building, the lines flow much more quickly than when it was over in the Rotunda. When it's time to register now, it only takes a few short minutes, as opposed to the hour it used to take. A disadvantage to the quicker line movement is that we can't blame being late to class on a long line in the bookstore or Registrar. We've seen improvements in two of the worst campus lines, but one line that never seems to get any better is the dining hall line. Of all 2800 students at Longwood College, 2000 of them always want to eat at the same time. This especially true on the weekends. No matter how we look at it, we are going to be faced with lines for a long time to come, and the ones at Longwood will probably are short in comparison.

The rewards of waiting in line are great, as this enthused student models.

Dining hall lines—one of the many types of lines we must all face everyday.

There is always someone to lend a helping hand in the computer lab.

COMPUTERS

In 1989, we at Longwood have seen the blossoming of the Computer Age. In addition to the computers in Coyner, the basement of Hiner and the 24 hour Study Lounge have both been the recipients of new computers. At the rate Longwood has been growing, that was a most welcome step. The Computer Lab is a consistently used service. Students have recently discovered that computers are an easy, and inexpensive way to get a variety of tasks accomplished. Some of the different ways computers are being utilized are to do papers, publications such as newsletters, and graphics for advertising flyers. The different kinds of computers that Longwood has include Apple and IBM. A type of computer that has become increasingly popular for its variety of graphics is the Apple MacIntosh.

As for growth, Longwood is moving towards accessing students to its mainframe through their personal computers in residence hall rooms. This action would also include access to the library computer. All this would make research much easier and is expected to be completed by sometime in 1990. In this Computer Age, Longwood is up and coming!

Two students spend a sunny day inside at the Macs.

Upon the 150th birthday of Longwood College, a special three-part symposium series on the topic of education was presented. The first program during Sept. featured expert educators including Dr. Ernest Boyer, Dr. Hoke L. Smith, Dr. James E. Blackwell, Dr. Lawrence E. McKibbin, and Barbara Sizemore. This program was entitled "The Future of Education", and ran for two days. The second part featured humorist Art Buchwald and Judge Leon Higginbotham. It concerned "Educating for the Future". The third segment, "The Meaning of Longwood" featured newsman Edwin Newman, and was designed to tie the symposium series together.

With this in mind, as well as the fact that Longwood was once a school designed solely for the education of teachers, The Virginian has decided to feature our education faculty. Teacher education is certain to prove to be one of this country's greatest resources, so the undertaking of not losing sight of this idea should be one of our greatest goals for the next 150 years.

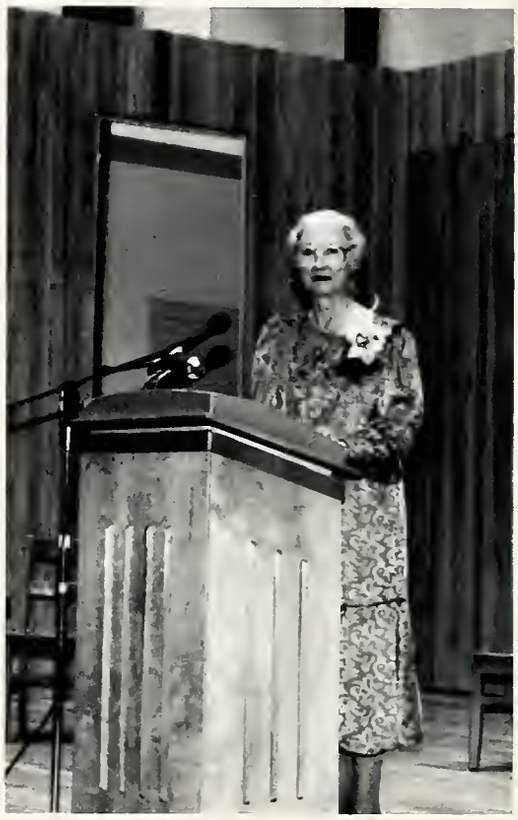
LONGWOOD'S HISTORY

Dr. Rosemary Sprague



On February 22, 1989, Board of Visitors Distinguished Professor of English, Dr. Rosemary Sprague presented a symposium sponsored lecture on the history of Longwood College. Dr. Sprague has become somewhat of an expert in the field, as she is the author of a book on the topic. A tedious but enjoyable project, Dr. Sprague has been engaged in the history since 1986, and has spent many long hours researching, following leads, and just writing the most recent account of Longwood's history.

The completed work made its formal debut on Founder's Day, where the real critics—the years of alumni who lived the history that fills the pages—had an opportunity to obtain personally autographed copies from Dr. Sprague herself.

Dr. Sprague is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College, and Western Reserve University. She has been at Longwood since 1962, and was named Board of Visitors Distinguished Professor of English in 1967.

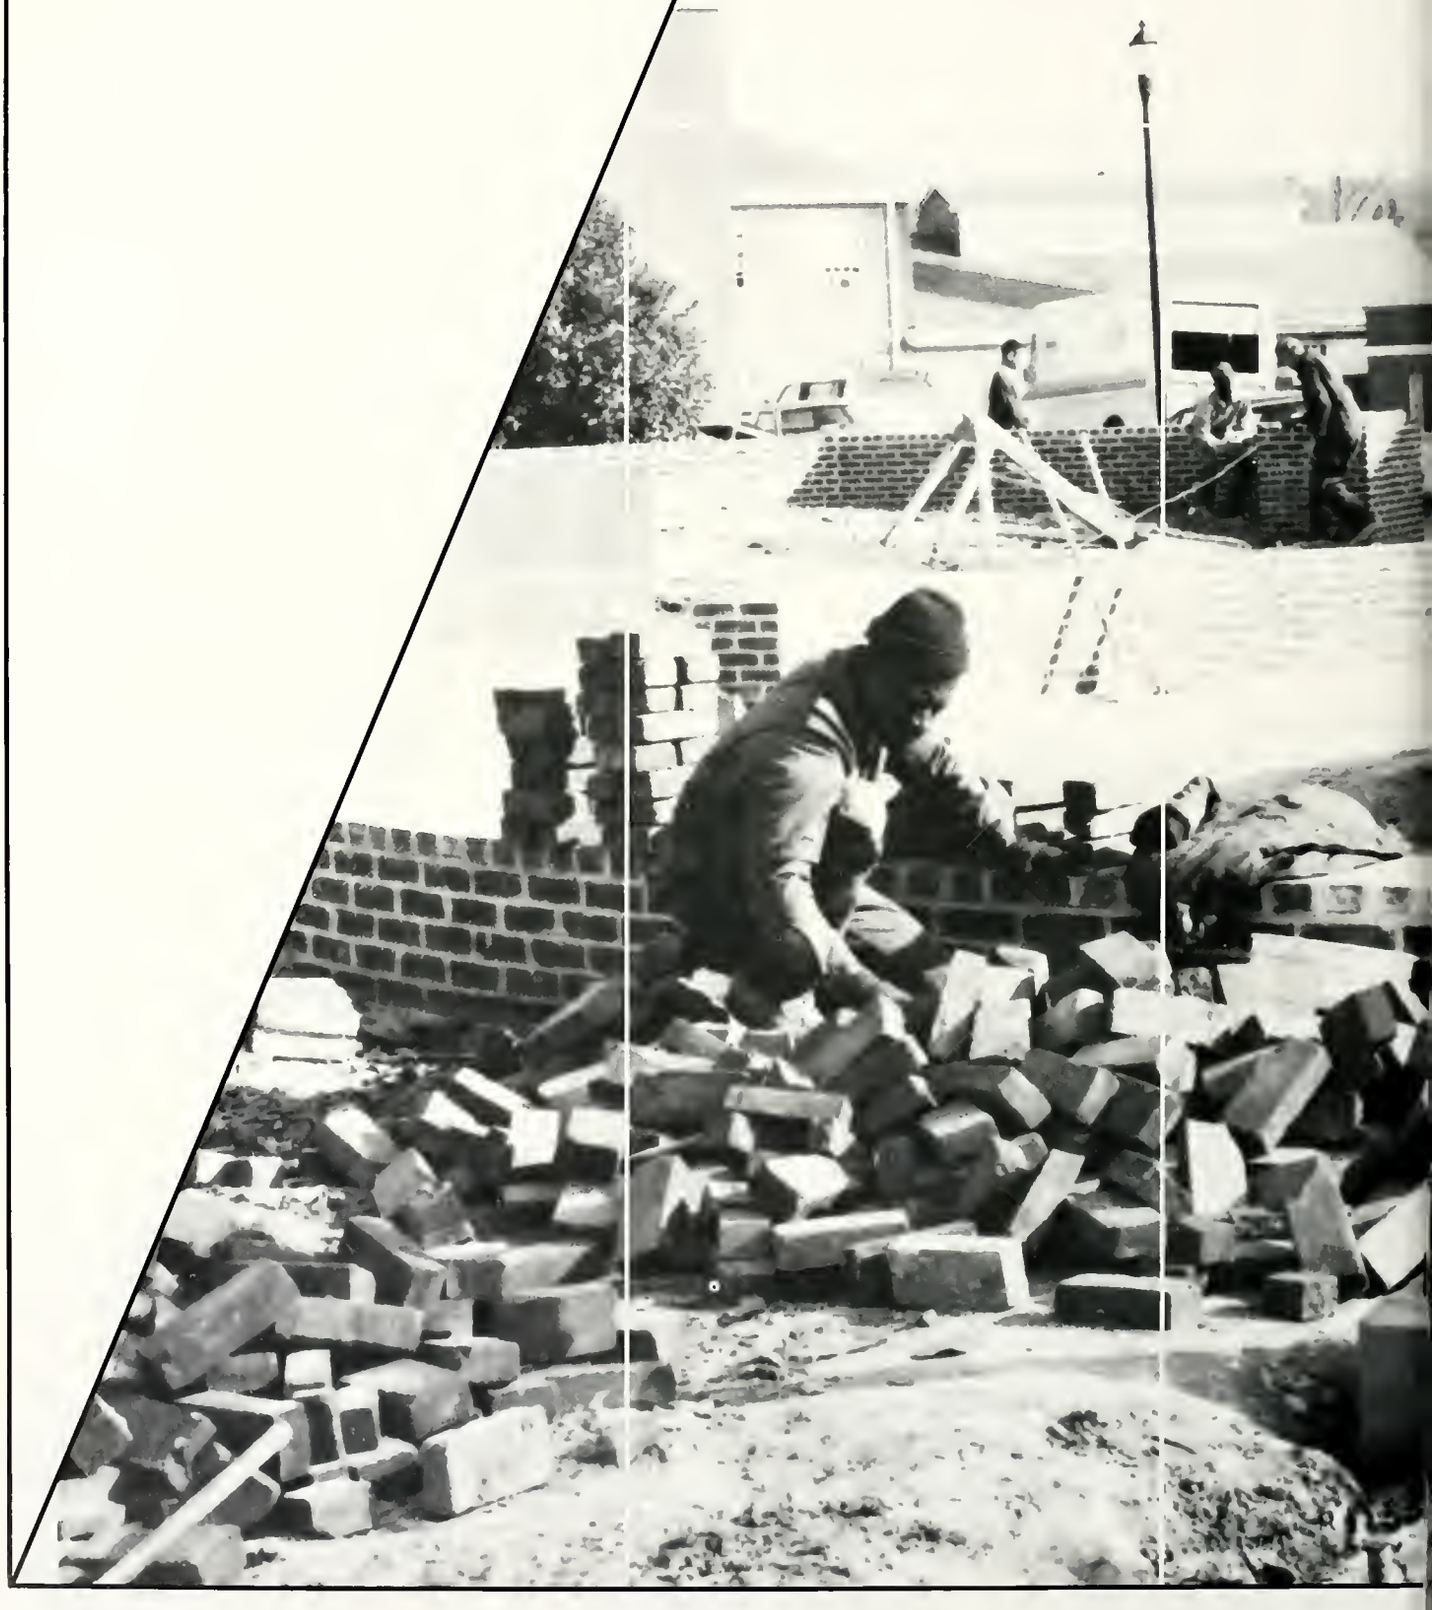
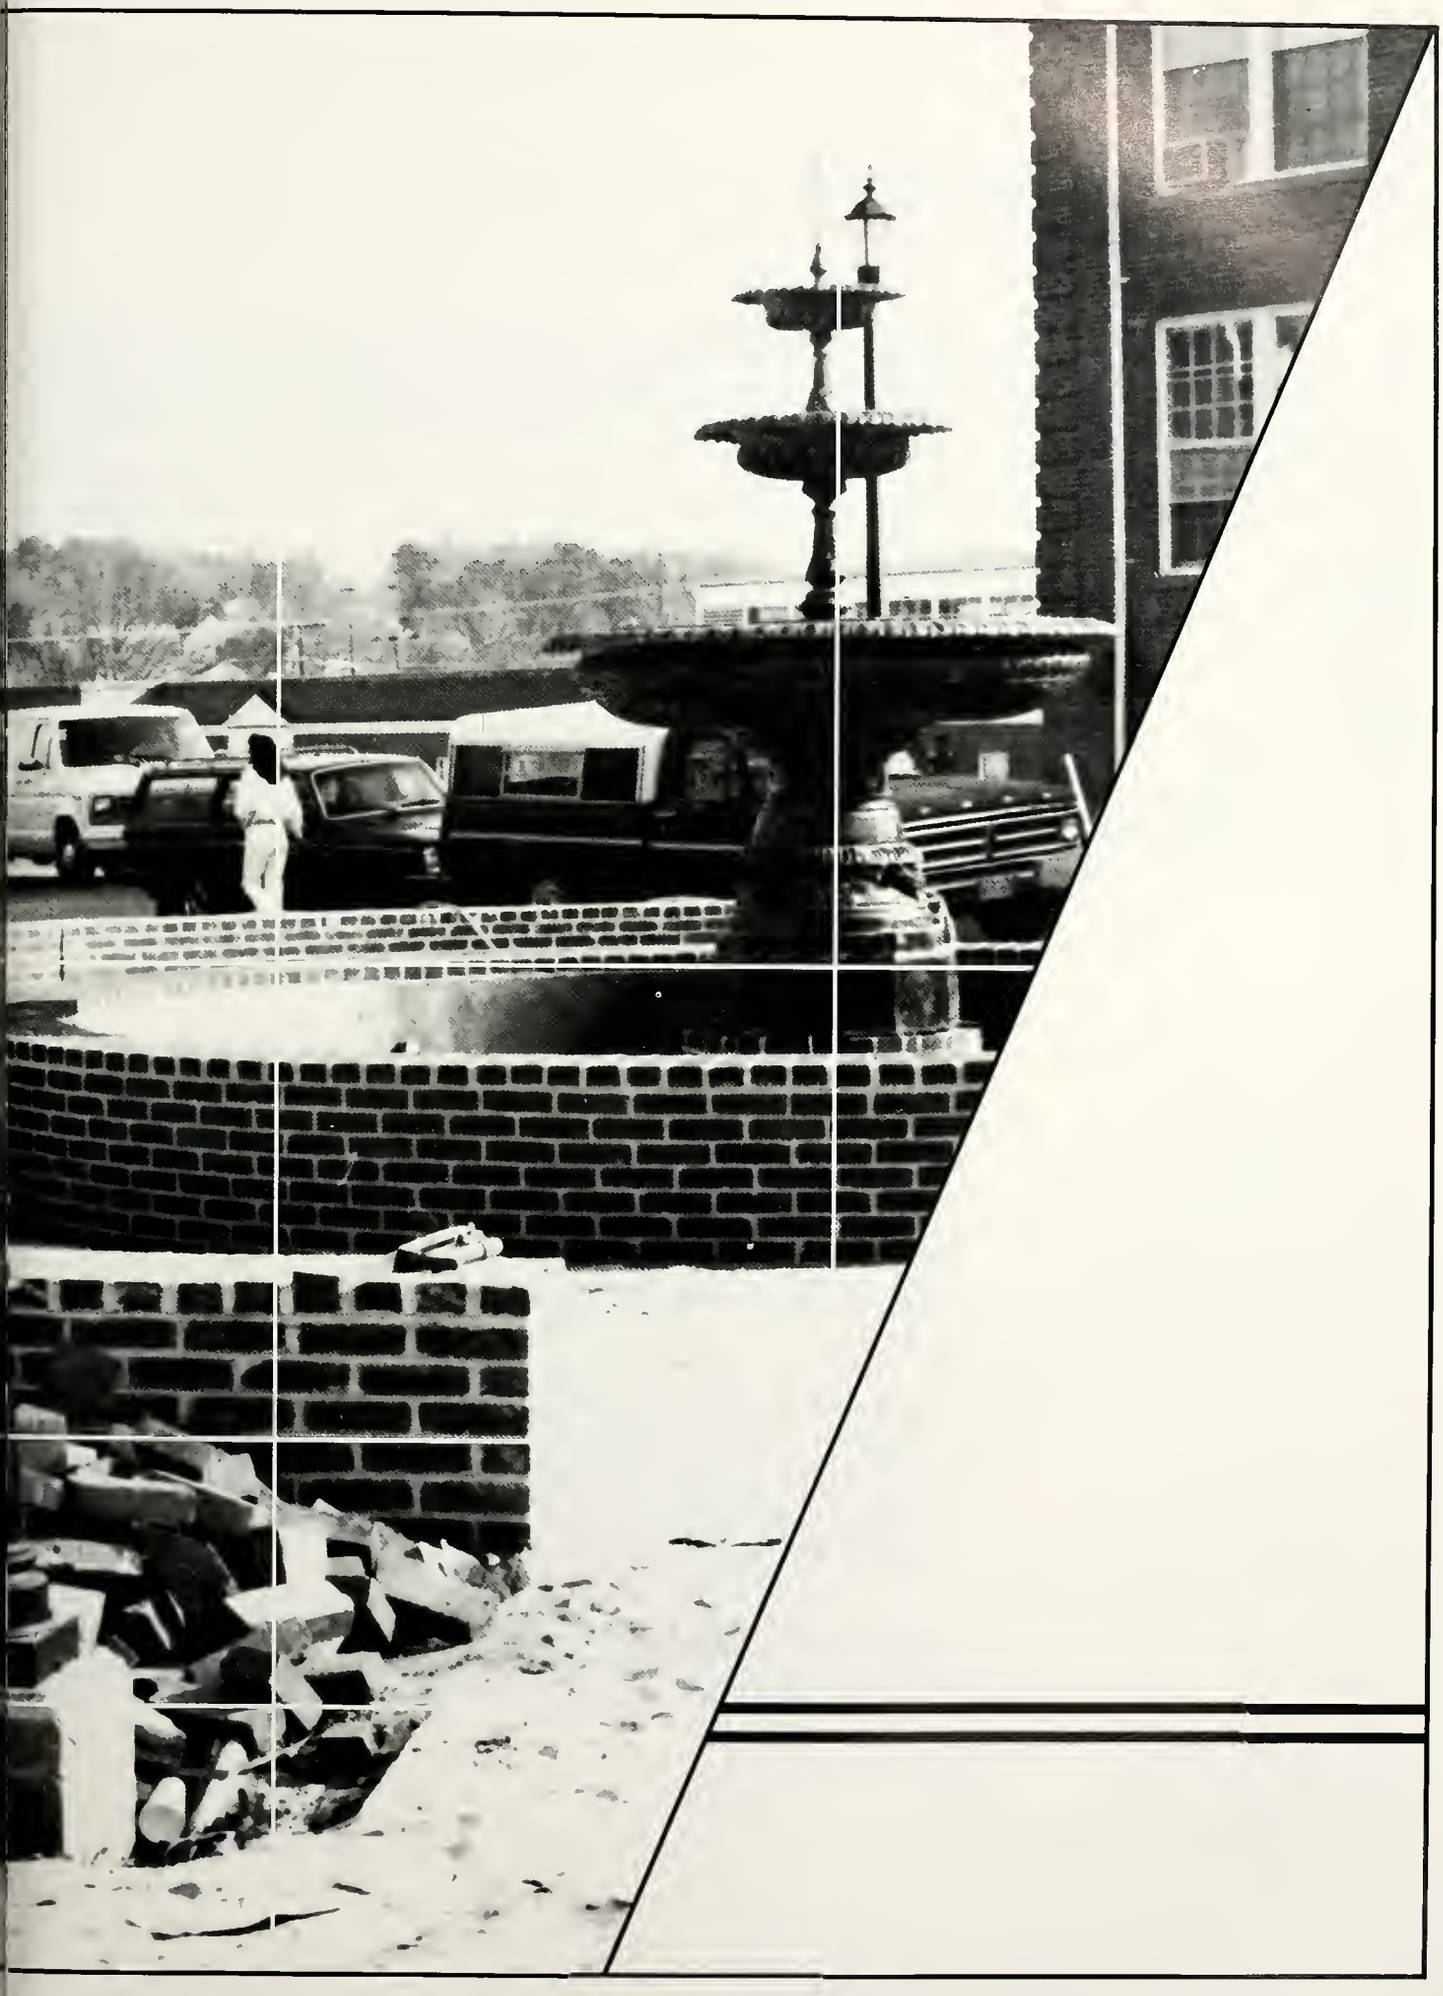
WHAT'S NEW IN 89





A State-of-the-Art Library

Excerpts from Longwood News, Spring, 1989:

Longwood broke ground for a new library April 17. Completion is expected in approximately 18 months. The contractor is the Avis Construction Company of Roanoke, which submitted a low bid of $5,707,355.

The new library will be at the southwest corner of Pine and Redwood streets, across from the Lankford Student Union. It will be a 71,000-square-feet, two-story brick and pre-cast concrete building with a third level underground.

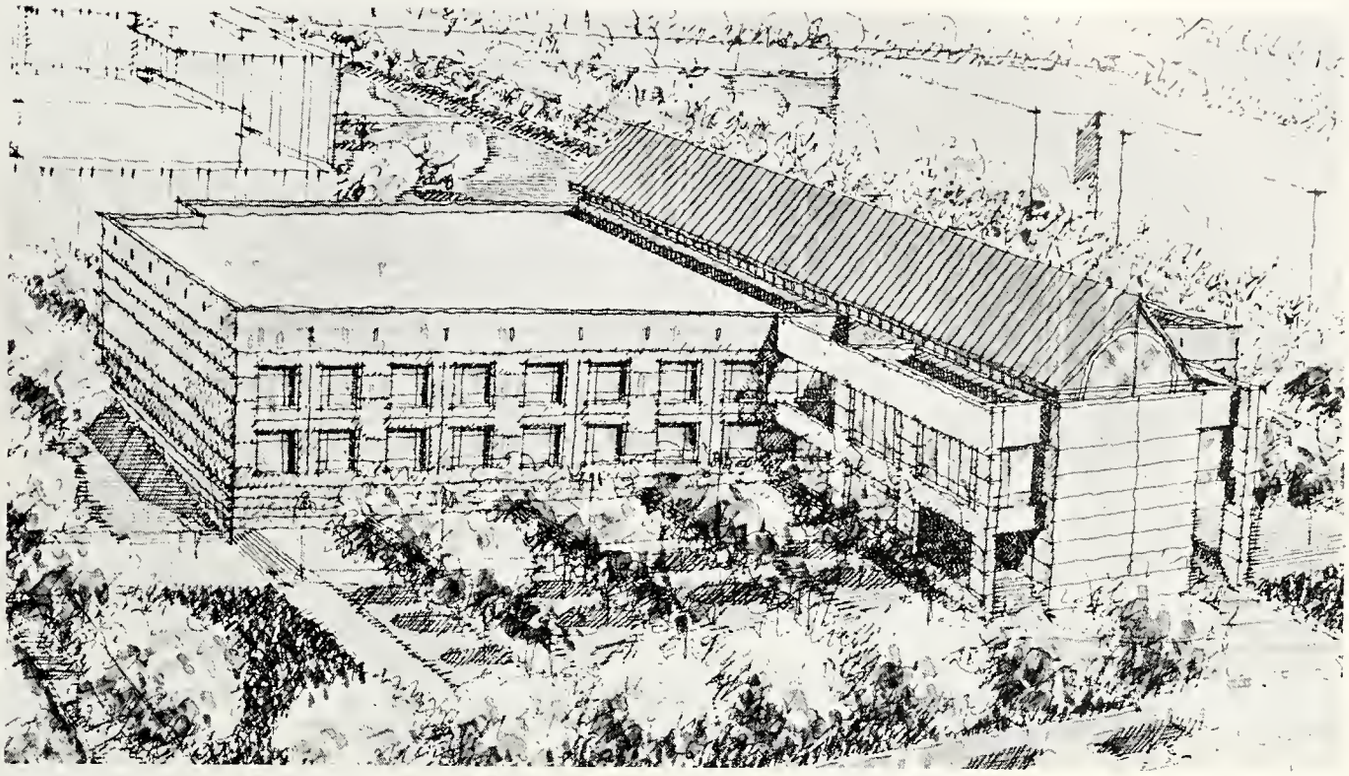
The new library will have more than three times the reader space of Lancaster Library, and will be almost twice as large in gross square feet. Lancaster Library has 42,000 square feet.

It will provide state-of-the-art technology for information retrieval from libraries throughout the world. It will also provide satellite reception of foreign programs that can be observed by language students and others.

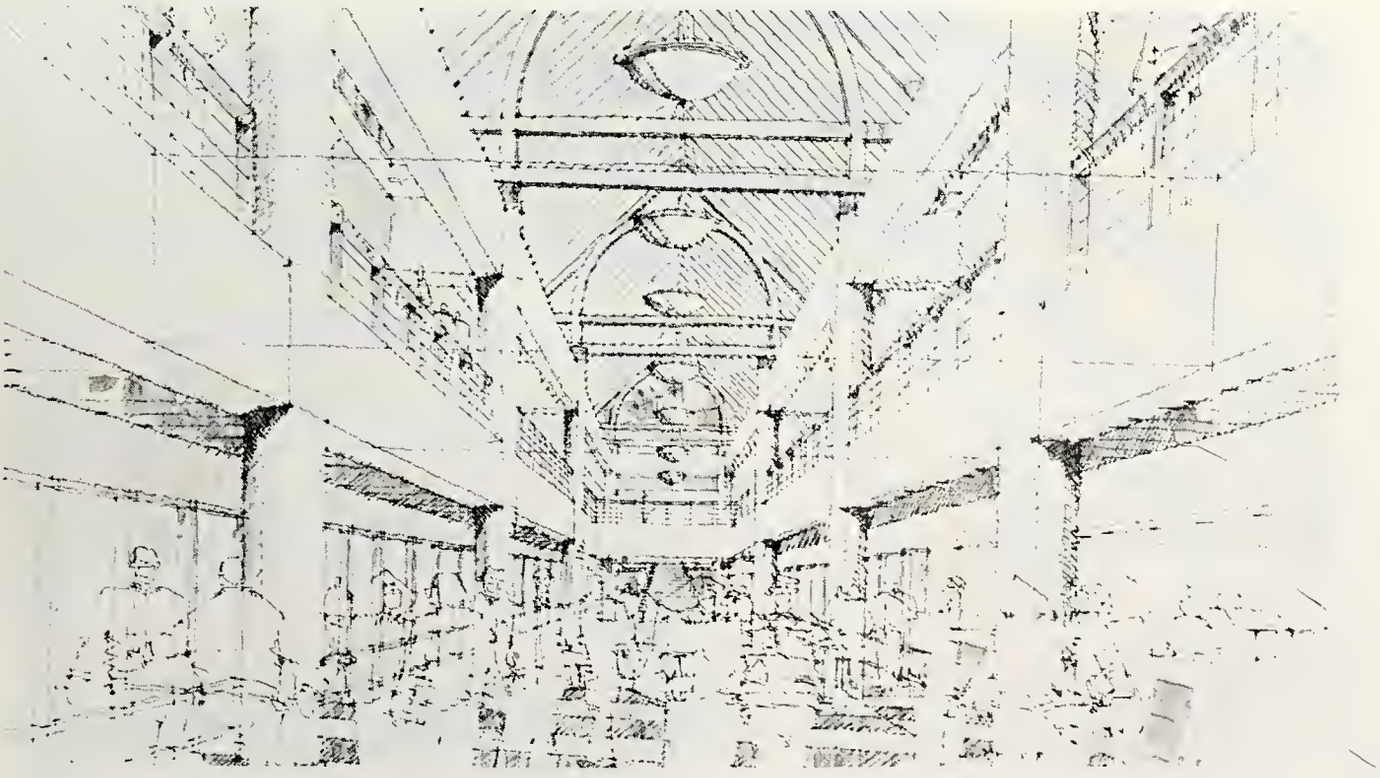
There also will be more tables, chairs, electronic study carrels, and other furniture for reading areas. The number of seats will be increased from 300 currently to more than 900. Satellite capabilities will be expanded.

The pre-construction library site.

The site under construction.



A sketch of the plans for the new library



The interior of the new library

In addition to the new library, Longwood's campus has seen a number of other changes as well.

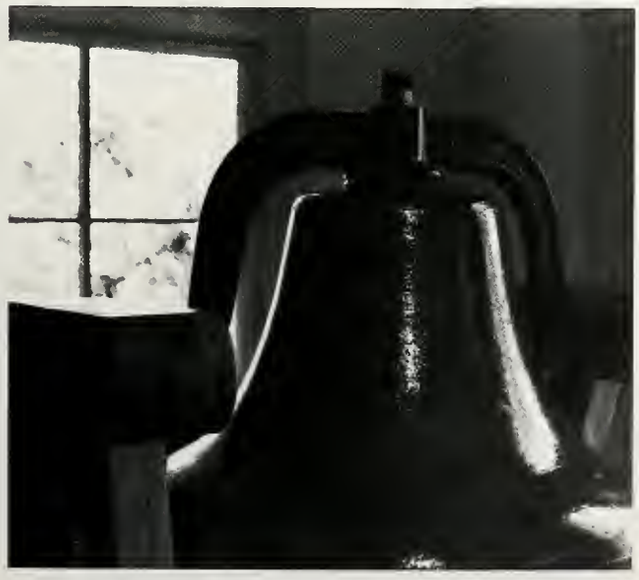
New walkways and wheelchair entrances were installed at the library and Jarman.

Piles of brick and lots of dirt indicate progress.

Several of the brick buildings were washed during Spring Semester.

One of the tunnels dug for the new telecommunications system's cables.

A new SGA president was installed as Ricky Otey passed the gavel to Drew Hudson.



The old bell, restored by Dr. Jordan, is now on display in the Rotunda.

FESTIVAL Of Music

This spring Longwood had its first Annual Festival of Music. Sponsored by the Student Union, with t-shirts by the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, the Sunday event was a huge success. The four band, all day event brought students outside to dance, study, and relax. It is events like this that will make Longwood a popular place to be on the weekends!

Students gather on Lankford and Stubbs Malls to watch and participate in the Festival.

Learning Center

Not only does Longwood have beautification projects in the works, but also improved study facilities. The Learning Center provides study aides in the way of peer tutors and study habit programs. All is free of charge and student tutors are work study employees. The Center is located beside Campus Police in the Graham Building and is directed by Scott Lissner.

Dr. Dorrill cuts the ribbon at the 24 Hour Study Lounge, another new facility for students.

EVENTS 89

The 1988-89 Virginian Yearbook staff tried to single out the events of the '88-'89 school year. We tried to show a cross section on all the world's happenings during Longwood's Sesquicentennial year.

The 1988 presidential election campaign between George Bush and Michael Dukakis, many complained, was dirty and lacking substance. After all had been said and done, Bush was sworn in as the 41st president claiming in his inauguration speech that "a new breeze is blowing."

The Greenhouse Effect dominated the news around the world as environmental issues and our endangered planet earth came into view. The Greenhouse Effect is global warming due to man-made pollutants in the atmosphere which form a blanket preventing heat from the sun from radiating back into space. Awareness has been created by news and special groups announcing the dangers of tropical rainforest depletion and chemicals such as those found in aerosols.

The United States returned to space with the lift-off of the space shuttle Discovery from Cape Canaveral, Fla. on September 29. The shuttle carried five astronauts on a four day mission. It had been thirty-two months since the fiery explosion of the space shuttle Challenger just seventy-three seconds after its lift-off, which caused seven astronauts their lives.

In sports, the San Francisco 49er's came from behind to win the NFL's Super Bowl XXIII. They beat the Cincinnati Bengals by a score of 20-16 in what was considered one of the most exciting games in recent years. The Michigan Wolverines with interim head coach Steve Fisher defeated the Seton Hall Pirates to become the 1989 NCAA Basketball Champions.

Talk shows became popular with Mortin Downey Jr., Oprah Winfrey, and Geraldo going head to head in the ratings war trying to grab hold of a bigger piece of the market.

In music some of the best selling singles included some of the following: "Wild Thing" by Tone Loc, "Straight Up" by Paula Abdul, "Every Rose Has Its Thorn" by Poison, "New Sensation" by INXS, "Sweet Child O Mine" by Guns N Roses, "Wild Wild West" by Escape Club, "Stand" by REM, and "Cult of Personality" by Living Colour.

Some of the top grossing films included: Rainman, Working Girl, Big, Die Hard, Who Framed Roger Rabbit, A Fish Called Wanda, and Scrooged.

Washington D.C., through its massive drug wars became the city with the highest murder rate. Gun control battles raged with the question of the AK 47 assault rifle being banned.

The supertanker Exxon Valdez, in a clear case of human error hit a reef and emptied 10 million gallons of fuel in the Prince William Sound off the coast of Alaska. It was the largest oil spill in the United States.

In December 1988, a Pan Am jumbo jet carrying a bomb exploded over Lockerbie Scotland killing a total of 270. Flight 103 was on its way to New York and among the victims were 35 students from Syracuse University returning from exchange programs in Europe.

Locked in the grip of the machinists strike supported by the pilots and flight attendants, Eastern Airlines was effectively shut down.

Ethics on Capitol Hill came into question resulting in the resignation of House Speaker Jim Wright.

Chinese students take Tianamen Square in a protest for more democracy against "Old Man" Deng Xiaoping, whose rate of change moves much too slowly.

The space shuttle Discovery takes off from the landing pad.

George Bush is elected 41st president of the United States.

The Virginian Staff

The 1989 Virginian Yearbook was published by the Delmar Publishing Company from Charlotte, N.C. Our representative is Lisa Dean. The professional photography company used was Max Ward-Delmar and the photographer we worked with was James Dove. The Virginian is a summer book, meaning that it covers events from September to May and is printed during the summer. Virginian Office Hours are posted on the Publications Office door in Lankford and can be reached there or through campus mail in Box 1134.

The 1989 yearbook staff is composed of a few very hard working individuals. Sincere thanks goes out to all those who contributed in any way at all to the production of this book. Among those are: Bonnie Buckner, Ronda Morgan, Larry Robertson, and Leah Payne for coming to the rescue of the short staffed book. Thanks also to the Alumni Office for information in the History Section, Matt Peterman and the Rotunda for moral support and the World Events pages, and Charlie Warner (neighbor!) for having an open door and lots of extra pictures for the Greek Sections.
